ESTHER VAN DEN BOS (Leiden University) and MARC JEANNEROD (Institut des Sciences Cognitives)
Sense of body and sense of action both contribute to self-recognition, 177–187

Discussions

BRUNO ROSSION (Brown University, University of Louvain), TIM CURRAN (University of Colorado) and ISABEL GAUTHIER (Vanderbilt University)
A defense of the subordinate-level expertise account for the N170 component, 189–196

SHLOMO BENTIN (The Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Institute des Sciences Cognitives) and DAVID CARMEL (The Hebrew University of Jerusalem)
Accounts for the N170 face-effect: a reply to Rossion, Curran, & Gauthier, 197–202

Brief articles

INA BORNKESSEL (Max Planck Institute of Cognitive Neuroscience), MATTHIAS SCHLESEWSKY (University of Potsdam) and ANGELA D. FRIEDERICI (Max Planck Institute of Cognitive Neuroscience)
Grammar overrides frequency: evidence from the online processing of flexible word order, B21–B30

LINDA R. WHEELDON (University of Birmingham) and ADITI LAHIRI (University of Konstanz)
The minimal unit of phonological encoding: prosodic or lexical word, B31–B41

GERRY T.M. ALTMANN (University of York)
Learning and development in neural networks – the importance of prior experience, B43–B50

VALERIA A. SOVRANO, ANGELO BISAZZA (University of Padua) and GIORGIO VALLORTIGARA (University of Trieste)
Modularity and spatial reorientation in a simple mind: encoding of geometric and nongeometric properties of a spatial environment by fish, B51–B59

Number 3

Regular articles

GAVIN HUNTLEY-FENNER (University of California), SUSAN CAREY (Harvard University) and ANDREA SOLIMANDO (New York University)
Objects are individuals but stuff doesn't count: perceived rigidity and cohesiveness influence infants' representations of small groups of discrete entities, 203–221

FEI XU (Northeastern University)
The role of language in acquiring object kind concepts in infancy, 223–250

J. FREDERICO MARQUES (University of Lisbon)
Names, concepts, features and the living/nonliving things dissociation, 251–275

DAN SPERBER (Institut Jean Nicod (CNRS, EHESS and ENS)) and VITTORIO GIROTTO (LPC, CNRS and University of Provence, University of Trieste)
Use or misuse of the selection task? Rejoinder to Fiddick, Cosmides, and Tooby, 277–290

Brief articles

GABRIELLA VIGLIOCCO, DAVID P. VINSON (University College London), MARKUS F. DAMIAN (University of Bristol) and WILLEM LEVELT (Max Planck Institute for Psycholinguistics)
Semantic distance effects on object and action naming, B61–B69

VIRGINIA SLAUGHTER, MICHELLE HERON and SUSAN SIM (University of Queensland)
Development of preferences for the human body shape in infancy, B71–B81

STEFAN FRISCH, MATTHIAS SCHLESEWSKY, DOUGLAS SADDY and ANNE-GRET ALPERMANN (University of Potsdam)
The P600 as an indicator of syntactic ambiguity, B83–B92

Author index of volume 85, 291

Contents of volume 85, 292–294